BUDDHA TOOTH RELIC

Sri Dalada Maligawa or the Temple of the Sacred Tooth Relic is a Buddhist temple in the city of Kandy, Sri Lanka. It is located in the royal palace complex of the former Kingdom of Kandy, which houses the relic of the tooth of the Buddha. Since ancient times, the relic has played an important role in local politics because it is believed that whoever holds the relic holds the governance of the country. Kandy was the last capital of the Sri Lankan kings and is a World Heritage Site mainly due to the temple.

Delegates here were guided by the local guide and they got to know the history behind the temple and the elephant called ‘Raja’ which was preserved there inside the temple campus.

This helped the delegates to understand the rise and the importance of Buddhism in Sri Lanka.

SEETHA AMMAN TEMPLE

Seetha Amman Temple is located approximately 1 kilometre (0.62 mi) from Hakgala Botanical Garden and 5 kilometres (3.1 mi) from Nuwara Eliya. The temple is located in the village of Seetha Eliya (also known as Sita Eliya). This place is believed to be the site where Sita was held captive by (Vikram) king Ravana, and where she prayed daily for Rama to come and rescue her in the Hindu epic, Ramayana. On the rock face across the stream are circular depressions said to be the footprints of Rawana’s elephant.

Delegates visited the temple and did prayer after which the poojari of the temple shared the whole history of the temple to the delegates. Then they saw the ‘footprints’ of the elephant of Ravana which is on the rocks beside the temple.

There they were served with the local food and were given shelter. Delegates mingled with the family members and became family members too. This seemed to be very useful and informative part of our journey in Sri Lanka through which the delegates got a bigger picture of Sri Lankan youth and their roles for the development and welfare of the nation.
Again this is also a very important part of the exchange where the delegates were taken into the Sri Lankan Parliament. There was guide from the parliament who guided the delegates throughout the campus which was fully secured.
